Airlines are always trying to keep up with modern trends and make the experience better for the passenger and the latest concept to interest European travellers is that the little bell above our heads for calling a steward and the hassle of ordering dinner could be a thing of the past thanks to a new app. Lufthansa are taking advantage of this new software to bring some of the conveniences we are used to, and some new and improved services, right to the passenger's tablet or smartphone.

Lufthansa passengers will enjoy a whole new in-flight experience with better access to more choices.
